

PARTNERS IN HEALTH CANADA

Overview:

An opportunity for a student passionate about the social determinants of health and their impact on divergent outcomes around living standards and access to opportunity. PIH regards access to public health as a human right.

The placement:

Partners in Health's (PIH) mission is to improve the health of the poor and marginalized. Our mission is to provide a preferential option for the poor in health care and bring the benefits of modern medical science to those most in need of them, as well as serving as an antidote to despair. PIH aims to do so working in partnership with the people, based on solidarity, rather than charity alone.

The position:

We are seeking a Community Engagement Assistant who actively participate in initiatives that advocate for the health and well-being of those most at risk, while also nurturing strong connections with our donor community. This will include raising awareness and championing global health equity by creating engaging content like quizzes, surveys, and polls that spark conversations around the social determinants of health. Additionally, this role will have the important responsibility of reaching out to donors, personally thanking them for their contributions and highlighting the incredible impact they've made.

The opportunity:

This is an opportunity for student who is keen to deepen their understanding of the role of the social determinants of health plays in disparate health outcomes in the developing world. The successful candidate will work with PIH Canada's team on donor engagement and outreach.

The ideal candidate:

A student with an academic background and/or personal interest in, but not limited to African, Caribbean, Latin American, Health/Biology, Public Policy or Equity studies. The ideal candidate will also possess strong interpersonal, communication, social media and event organizing skills, who is flexible, responsible, and capable of working both independently and collaboratively.
